Message from the Governor

North Carolina's manufacturing industries are the backbone of our thriving economy. More new and expanding industries have announced plans to locate in North Carolina in recent years than in any other state in the nation. Annual surveys of top corporate officials consistently rank North Carolina as the country's best location for new plant sites.

Our hard-working people are the main reason North Carolina is the best place to locate a business. As the tenth most populous state, we are proud that no other state employs a larger percentage of its total work force in manufacturing. The state's manufacturing work force is unique in both size and productivity. North Carolina workers comprise the largest manufacturing work force in the Southeast — more than 830,000 people — and they yield a greater production value per $1 earned in wages than the nation's other workers in the same industries.

There are other significant reasons why North Carolina is the number one choice of manufacturing industries across the nation:

- Free, customized skill training for new and expanding industries
- No inventory tax
- Low energy costs
- Central geographic location offering proximity to major markets
- Unequaled transportation infrastructure
- Lowest construction costs
- Exceptional business climate/unsurpassed quality of life

Most importantly, North Carolina's economy has a solid manufacturing base. The more than 6,800 firms listed in this directory, and the goods and services that they provide, are vital to sustain our state's unprecedented growth and continued prosperity. On behalf of our 6.6 million citizens, I express thanks to these manufacturing firms. To manufacturing firms outside our state, I extend an invitation to visit North Carolina and see why this is the "Better Business Climate."

James G. Martin

Introduction

The 1992-93 Directory of North Carolina Manufacturing Firms is published by the Department of Economic and Community Development as a service to the state's industrial establishments. It includes specific information on more than 6,800 industries throughout the state. The information is detailed in seven comprehensive sections for easy reference.

- Alphabetical Guide
  Arranged alphabetically, this guide indexes all firms listed in the Directory with Geographic Guide page numbers.

- Geographic Guide
  Arranged by county, this section lists each firm's complete address; company headquarters and parent company, year established; employment range; names and titles of management personnel; export/import capabilities; and SIC (Standard Industrial Classification) product codes.

- Company-Parent Company Cross Index
  Arranged by company, this section provides a quick reference of parent company association.

- Product Guide
  Arranged by four-digit SIC sequence, this section lists each firm's address; employment range; and product description.

- The Purchase Guide
  Arranged by two-digit SIC sequence, this section lists each firm's address; employment range; and purchase description.

- Trade (Export-Import) Guide
  Arranged by two-digit SIC sequence, this guide lists each firm's address; employment range; and products exported/imported (respectively).

- Appendix
  Economic and demographic information on North Carolina, with related items of interest.

The North Carolina Department of Economic and Community Development acknowledges with appreciation the cooperative efforts of North Carolina's manufacturers in submitting information for this Directory. Information in the Directory is obtained by surveying companies across the state. Considerable effort has been made to compile and verify a comprehensive list of North Carolina manufacturers. However, omissions and errors may occur inadvertently.

A blank industrial survey form is located on the last page of this Directory. Any North Carolina manufacturer not currently listed is encouraged to complete and forward this form to us for inclusion in the next edition of the Directory of North Carolina Manufacturing Firms.
